THE KINKER
The local committee is still tinkering with the tax bill. Although the remark is alliterative it is not uttered in a spirit of criticism, for this body of men
has a real task before it—the raising of sufficient revenue to wipe out a staggering deficit and providing enough money to carry the state's activities for another two years. When their labors are completed, the entire revenue problem is by no means solved, for both House and Senate are bound to punch holes through it, causing it to lose resemblance to its original form.

SURE, TAX GEORGE
We are all human enough to justify the taxing of the other fellow for all and a little more than the traffic will bear, but when it comes to our own individual pocketbook we can think up more excuses than an office boy who wants to attend the baseball game, why the burden
should not be laid on our particular shoulders. Then in recent years there has sprung up a philosophy which has for its slogan, "Soak the rich."
Perhaps the basis of this philosophy is philanthropic and predicated on the Scriptural fiat that it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God. Filled with love or something for their fellowmen
and not desiring to deprive them of the delights of Heaven they propose to strip the rich of their substances so they can become candidates for that home beyond the skies. The affluent, however, view the assault from a different angle and vain would cling to what they have acquired in this earth even though moth and rust doth corrupt and thieves break through and steal.

Among the "rich" are also listed the corporations and they, too, are on the list of those who must disgorge. If these people have their way, there are more of this type in the legislature than one would suspect. They forget that

DE LAP FIGHTS OIL PIPE LINE MEASURE

RECONSIDER VOTE ASKED IN ASSEMBLY

UP—Taxation of oil and gas pipelines at the rate of $40, 000,000 a biennium, prorated
of agricultural production and changes in the method of determining public utility rates
were approved by the Assembly today as the lower House passed a series of highly controversial bills.

MONOPOLY CHARGED
Charging that the major oil companies held a monopoly on pipe lines, Assemblyman John O'Donnell, Woodland, successfully urged passage of his bill which would tax the pipe lines or give them an alternative of becoming common carriers under jurisdiction of the State railroad commission.

ASKS FOR REGULATION

monopoly and provide regulation
of over 4,000 miles of oil pipe lines. If the oil companies insist on their monopoly, then they should pay a tax. They can become common carriers and still

Lamson Scored By Prosecutor In Argument

SAN JOSE, May 9.—UP—Perjury charges were made against two expert witnesses for David Lamson's defense by Prosecutor Allen P. Lindsay today as he
of the State's case.

E. O. Heinrich and George A.
Weber, criminologists who testified for Lamson, "deliberately perjured themselves when they said they found blood spots on the outside of a door to the Lam-son cottage bathroom," Lindsay declared.

"Look at this picture taken before Heinrich and Weber examined the place," he shouted to the jury. "See for yourselves—there were no blood spots there!" The picture exhibited by the prosecutor showed no stains on the door.

Lindsay next had court attaches bring before the jury the door in question. Its hall-side surface showed no spots.

"Mrs. Lamson never went into that tub alive," Lindsay declared. "She was picked up and put in it after being killed earlier in the day."

Lindsay indicated he would complete the State's case some time tomorrow afternoon. If early, the jury was expected to receive the case immediately. Otherwise Judge Syré will deliver his final instructions and deliver the case to the jury for its verdict Saturday morning.

Asks Permission to Compromise Claim

MARTINEZ, May 9.—Permission to accept $551 in settlement of a claim for damages for his son, James Marinell, 19, is asked by Frank Marinell in a petition filed in superior court today.

Marinell claims that on January 2, 1935, his son was injured in an automobile collision at the intersection of Pullman avenue
and South Forty-seventh street, Richmond, when a car he was operating was in a collision with one driven by Edward Hoffman.
The petitioner says that Hoffman has offered $551 in settlement and he asked permission to take it for his son. The boy suffered laceration of the forehead
and other injuries.

MRS. ANTHONY FRANKIE left yesterday for Bear Creek, Alaska,
where she will join her husband who is connected with a large Alaskan mine.

2 GANGSTERS PAY PENALTY FOR MURDER

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., (Friday) May 10.—UP—Raymond Hamilton and Joe Palmer, members of the gang once led by the late Clyde Barrows and Bonnie Parker, died in the electric chair here today.

They were executed for the murder of Major Crosson, a guard at the Eastham prison
farm, who was slain by escaping convicts on January 16, 1934.

Last rites of the Catholic church
were administered to Hamilton and Palmer a short time before the execution.

Both men embraced the Catholic religion within the past month.

Picked guards watched over the killers in the last few weeks in the Texas state prison to prevent a duplication of their sensational escape last July 22,
when Hamilton, Palmer and Blackie Thompson accomplished
the unprecedented feat of breaking out of their death cells while all three were awaiting execution.

Thompson was slain a few months later by officers near Amarillo.

Pilot Is Blamed For Wrecking Of 'Sky Chief' Plane

MACON, Mo., May 9. UP—Hours of wrangling between Manuel Davis, attorney for TWA, Inc., and a coroner's jury studying the crash of the air liner "Sky Chief"
in which five lives were lost, ended
tonight with a verdict blaming Pilot Harvey Bolton for the accident.

Coroner D. W. Gooch excused
the six-man jury and announced,
"The verdict stands."

Gooch's action was tantamount to a refusal of Davis' motion that the records be made to show that jurors conducted themselves improperly and the verdict should be set aside.

Richmond Boy Is Injured In Cycle Accident

James Brackett, 16, of 219 Neville avenue, was treated at Richmond
Cottage hospital yesterday evening for cuts, bruises and shock after when he fell from his bicycle.

The boy was en route home from school when his bicycle forks broke and he was pitched to the pavement.
A passing motorist took him to the hospital and he was later brought home by his parents.

El Cerrito Man Hurt By Own Car

Barney Rohles, 57, of El Cerrito
was treated at the Albany hospital yesterday for cuts and bruises suffered when he was knocked down by his own machine. Police reported that Rohles was standing in front of his machine in a garage and a mechanic was tinkering with the motor. The mechanic accidentally stepped on the starter and the car lurched forward, knocking Rohles to the cement floor. One of the wheels of the car passed over his leg.

District Attorney Ire Aroused At A Heated Grand Jury Session

MARTINEZ, May 9.—If reports of the grand jury held here Wednesday night, lasting until after 1 o'clock this morning, are true, it was quite a hectic session, and but little was accomplished except there was a continuous flow of words and much bickering. Tempers became raw, and possibly many things were said that had better been left unsaid. Echoes of the meeting are still rolling around the county.

Some people in the county have been mean enough to say that the deliberations of the inquisitorial body have reached the stage that politics are entering into the deliberations, and no action is taken unless the effect politically is carefully considered.

One person remarked that a member of the jury was weighing what effect his vote on grand jury matters might have on the state senator fight next year.

Wins Medal

Notwithstanding all the uppity newspaper talk about justices of the peace to be summoned before that body, and further investigations of vice conditions in Pittsburg, neither of these matters were mentioned. The Pittsburg report is still in the hands of the district attorney.

THAT $12,000 FIND

One of the matters said to have come up for consideration was the disposition of the $12,000 remaining in the school revolving fund, that is a heritage from the late W. H. Hanlon school regime. Quite a discussion is alleged to have taken place over the matter, in which there was crucial and re-crucial.

It seems that a legal opinion on the case had been given the county superintendent of schools
by the legal advisor of the state

ROOSEVELT BONUS VETO AID IS SEEN

Copyright 1935 by United Press
WASHINGTON, May 9.—
UP—There are 36 votes—four more than needed to sustain a presidential veto—pledged to last ditch opposition to the Patman bonus inflation bill rolls of the Senate showed tonight.

After all the doubtful Senators have been eliminated, there remain 24 Democrats and 12 Republicans willing to support President Roosevelt's veto. The full voting strength of the Senate now is 93.

URGENT SUPPORTS

Sensing defeat, Commander
James E. Van Zandt of the Veterans of Foreign Wars today took the unprecedented step of appealing to 1,000,000 Americans to urge President Roosevelt to sign the Patman bill, which has passed both houses of Congress.
The measure calls for the printing of $2,250,000,000 in greenbacks to pay the bonus.

HAS VOTES

President Roosevelt can count
on the following to vote to sus-tain his veto.

Democrats—(21)—Ashurst, Bal-

New Fight Opens Over Port Rate Court Decision

Continuing Richmond's fight for equality in shipping rates, City Attorney Thomas M. Carlson yesterday filed a brief with the state supreme court supporting the plea of the Parr-Richmond Terminal corporation for rehearing of the recent decision of the court denying the Parr Corporation the right to permit lessees of docking space to do their own loading and unloading of freight cars. Carlson represents the city in the case as a friend of the court.

The question now before the court is whether or not the state railroad commission has the right to restrain the Parr concern from allowing its shippers the loading and unloading privileges, the same rights which may be granted by municipal utilities and port, distributors and which is allegedly done by indirection by privately-owned shippers-controlled terminals, and which cannot be denied to shippers
at state-owned docks.

Carlson, in his lengthy brief, declares that the local terminal is being denied the right to do the very thing that most of those who filed complaints against the local company are doing. He further declares that the city is being placed at a disadvantage in its efforts to obtain shipping business. He contends that Richmond is an interested party in the case, through its interest in revenues derived from operation of the local docks by Parr
and the benefits derived by development of the harbor.

He then read his prepared statement in which he thanked the Father, Pinnegar, Catholic priest for his spiritual ministrations and said he was ready to die.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

"Upside Down Stomach" Is Really a Hernia Condition—Forced Through Rupture in Diaphragm

I ALMOST forgot that I promised to write another column on the diaphragm. With all these stories about "upside down stomach" getting into the newspapers, you will be wondering what it is all about. It is a misnomer to the physician to see such a name used. I fear it is one that some news reporter gave to the operation.

The condition is one of a diaphragmatic rupture, or hernia. It is due to some defect or injury in the diaphragm which allows some of the abdominal contents to escape up into the chest cavity. The protruding part may be a part of the stomach, intestines, spleen, and even the liver.

If all of the stomach entered the chest cavity, the chest would be "upside down." It is a condition which we have always had with us, but it usually passed unnoted. It is either congenital, that is, a portion of the diaphragm muscle weakened at birth, or it is the result of injury. It was formerly recognized only when operating for some other trouble, and it was discovered accidentally. It is not uncommon in stab or gunshot wounds of the chest or abdomen, when the stab passed up or down through the diaphragm.

SINCE we have been able to get pictures of the abdominal and chest contents by the use of the X-ray, the diagnosis can be made before attempting an operation and the actual condition can be determined. It was explained the other day just what this apron of tough fibrous muscle we call the diaphragm is and how it separates the chest cavity from the abdominal area. Also how it is attached to the breast bone and the lower ribs as well as to the spines of the vertebrae in the back.

The only openings in it are three main ones. One is just in front of the back bone which allows the large arteries to pass into the abdomen and to the lower extremities. One farther front is for the passage of the esophagus or gullet, and another to permit the large veins to pass up into the chest.

The only normally weak portion of the diaphragm is just behind and below the lower end of the breast bone. This is where the rupture usually occurs at birth, and I judge this is the kind of rupture that is referred to in the news of upside down stomach.

When we draw in our breath the diaphragm is forced down and flattens out somewhat. As we exhale, the stomach and intestines push up and force the air from the lungs. A very sharp blow over the stomach could tear a weakened point in the diaphragm and force the stomach through the opening into the chest. Stab wounds can do the same.

A TEAR may occur and cause no trouble for sometime, unless severe hemorrhage occurs, till some part passed through the opening and interfered with the work of the stomach and bowels. Probably the news reports are of those which occur at birth and are not severe enough at that time to cause death from pressure or inability to retain nourishment.

Later more of the abdominal organs may pass through the opening in the chest. If it is a portion of the stomach which passes up and does not slip back, the stomach cannot retain enough food. Its movement is restricted so that complete digestion does not occur. The parts may grow together.

There is no remedy when this occurs except operation to replace the organs and close the opening in the diaphragm. This is difficult and dangerous. The patient is usually undernourished and weak and often undeveloped. An opening is usually made in the upper part of the abdominal wall and the contents pulled back into the abdomen.

If that cannot be done, portions of one or two of the lower ribs may be removed and the work performed in that way. The heart, lungs, and stomach must be handled in the operation and it requires much skill.

Guide to Charm A LOVELY SKIN TEXTURE LENDS IDEA OF BEAUTY

By JACQUELINE HUNT

EACH time you look into your mirror, see yourself with a critical eye and never pass up a chance to improve some detail. Is your skin smooth and fine, to begin with? Remember that if your skin is really beautiful few people will stop to analyze your features one by one. A lovely color of beauty which is as important as the real thing.

Every woman and girl can improve her skin. Yet I get hundreds of letters from you, wailing, "I've tried everything, yet my skin is so dead and yellow and blemished." Shame on you! In some cases perhaps you have tried cosmetics and routines that were not intended for your type of skin, but in ninety per cent of the cases lack of regularity was the real cause for failure to get results.

The routine needn't be elaborate or lengthy. You should allow yourself ten minutes for giving your face its nightly cleansing and corrective treatment, however. Use a good cold cream if your skin is dry or quick-melting cream if it is oily.

With swift, upward strokes of the fingertips spread the cream over your upper chest, throat, face and forehead.

With similar upward strokes remove the soiled cream with soft, absorbent tissues. Now wash with soap and water, rinse thoroughly and pat in a cold, bracing skin tonic or astringent to wake up your skin. Next, if your skin is dry, massage with a rich cream to keep your skin soft, unlined and free from roughness or flakiness.

The cream may be left on while you attend to the other details of your toilette if you wish, or you may remove the excess at once with tissues. Enough of the cream will remain on your skin to lubricate it during the night without choking the pores.

In the morning simply dash your face with cold water, pat dry and use a tonic for the oily skin or a foundation preparation for the dry skin, and apply your make-up. For the average, not-seriously-blemished skin, this treatment is all that is needed for improvement and for preserving the health and quality of your skin.

Now for details: We started to talk about noses in yesterday's column. If your nose is large or none too attractively shaped, do not rouge near it. Wear your hair in a simple, yet striking style, either high on your head or low on your neck, but avoid a fullness midway or about the tips of your ears. Keep your eyebrows fairly heavy and if they are too short, extend them with an eyebrow pencil. Use a small amount of eye shadow on the outer corners of the eyelids and darken your lashes to make your eyes the loveliest things about your face.

Rouge your lips with a soft shade of rouge and if they tend to be thin or your mouth small, rouge all the way to the outer corners, keeping within the natural lines of your lips, of course. Use a darker lipstick and rouge a bit more heavily in the center to give your mouth a lovely, seductive look.

Martin W. Clement, Pennsy's New Head, Likes Railroad, With Gardening on the Side

IT WAS a bright, hot summer's day in New Jersey thirty-four years ago when a young man by the name of Martin W. Clement looked somewhat regretfully at his brand-new diploma from Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., and put it carefully away in a trunk. He then reported to his newly won job with the Pennsylvania Railroad, and was made a rodman under an assistant engineer at $45 a month.

The other week he was elected president of the railroad to succeed General W. W. Atterbury, who has characterized the new head as the "ablest railroad executive in the country."

That Clement should reach his pinnacle at the age of fifty-four is ample evidence of his fast rate of progress. It became noticeable that General Atterbury was placing more responsibility on his shoulders with every passing year while his mastery of railroad work was known to all employees from "grease ball" up.

Now, as he takes his high place, Mr. Clement has come to

Women Follow Men's Fashions This Year With Masculine Shirtings and Tailoring

SQUARED NECKLINES

Copyright, 1935, by Fairchild.

By IRENE VAIL
New York—It is quite possible that you have not realized how much women owe to men's fashions. Particularly this season, when shirts are the accepted mode for blouses, and when so many women are patronizing men's tailors. What is more interesting is that several of the leading tailors of New York are advertising to women.

One of the outstanding successes of this season is the topcoat. Women are ordering such coats in tweeds, in more or less mannish versions, such as the pastel or white coat. There's usually a need for some such coat. While usually it's the all-weather coat that leads the fashion, this season brings such a pleasant array of pastels, so that it is doubtful whether the white coat will be the leader. Dusty pink is a lovely color in soft wool and is generally a practical shade. It may be worn over white black chambray.

Sketched today at left, the polka dot cotton dress promotes the squared neckline with organ-die employed for the flat yoke and ruffle, which likewise edges the armhole. Yellow and brown combine in floral printed percale at right, this model offering the squared neck with pleated jabot to the belt. The armholes are finished with the wide self-fabric pleating.

At right of the column are some new belt buckles from Vienna. From top to bottom:

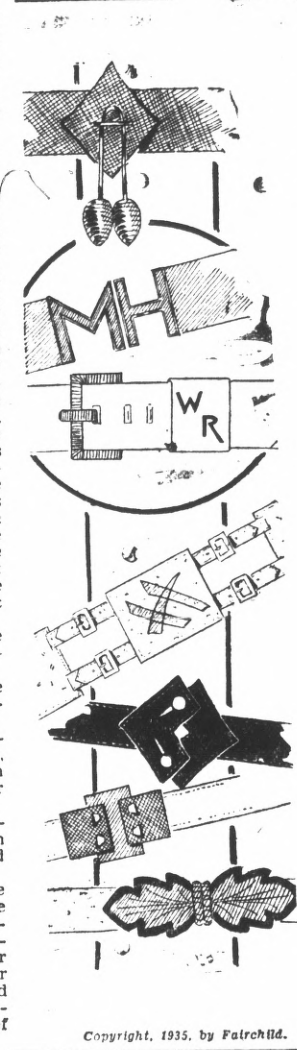

A novelty buckle with a square suede plate decorated with fruit-like balls in patent.

A brown leather belt with leather initials forming the clasp, large flap posing the initials; in this buckle is worn far over at the side of the front.

A sports type of "saddle" inspiration, with buckles and an initial (H in this case) stamped into the center plaque.

The three bottom belts are other worked leather types. The upper one in suede with the center motifs fastened by silver buttons, the next is in beige leather with two blue flaps with silver clips and a center plaque of red leather, and the last one is a pigskin belt with leaf ornament of green suede piped in red.

You and Your Child

"PICKING" CHILD APART MAY BE EMBARRASSING

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

SEVERAL ladies dropped in to see Annette and her young mother who were staying with grandmother for a while. After the ladies were seated, the child was ushered in. She was dressed very prettily for the occasion. A blue hair ribbon perched saucily on her head. "How strikingly blue her eyes are," commented one of the ladies. Another admired the curls. The third noticed the dress. Annette's height, build, coloring, personality were all noticed and discussed. Finally, the subject of Annette was exhausted and the visitors turned their attention elsewhere.

As they spoke of other things, Annette studied them carefully. Standing beside her mother's chair, elbows resting on a small end-table, she supported her head in cupped hands. Then there came a lull in the conversation and Annette spoke up.

"You're too fat," she said, pointing to the largest of the ladies. Grandmother gasped. She knew how sensitive the lady was about her size. And before she could do anything to stop her, Annette was saying to the others, "You're pretty, though, and so are you."

An embarrassing fifteen minutes followed. The two ladies who had been pronounced pretty were pleased. They would have smiled, but they were afraid of offending their companion who had been called too fat. Grandmother frowned, but mother was not concerned. Meanwhile, the large lady was trying very hard to appear to be at ease. She managed a weak smile that must have been painful for her.

But mother shook her head. "Annette did not mean to be rude. Furthermore the child was no more rude than they had been when they picked her apart. They certainly did a thorough job of that. At three children are imitative, observant and talkative. They need to express themselves, and adults should not take offense at what they say. It isn't said in malice. Usually, it is the truth!"

There is no law to compel you to take your sister into your home, certainly, and since you feel the way you do I advise you not to have her with you. It is most demoralizing to live in an atmosphere of hate, or even incompatibility, and you have every right to resent it.

Since your sister is not young, no matter how expert, and she has no money, I should think that because of the blood tie between you that you would want to see that she is not in want.

Peace of mind is worth something—most of us have to pay one way or another for lack of serenity—so I should think that you would suggest to your sister that she establish herself modestly and within your means until such time as she can better herself. She will in all probability jump at the chance to leave your roof, for she undoubtedly feels that she is not wanted.

How any self-respecting person could settle down to any such arrangement is beyond me. If you were congenial it would be a really good working arrangement, but since you are not you must admit that it is a hard and a cruel deal harder on her than on you.

NONE of us relishes humble pie, and she must have had to eat considerably of it. Set yourself free from this undesirable influence, even if you have to pay for your freedom.

You will not resent being told of your home if you see that she is provided with another. You both realize how unpleasant the present arrangement is. I see no reason why you should not be honest with each other and fair enough to accept the situation.

Two women rarely inhabit the same house with anything like contentment. Sisters should be devoted to each other and good comrades, but there's every reason to believe that this is by no means always the case. Sometimes jealousy causes the trouble, sometimes one cannot put a finger on any one cause, and this, it would seem to me, was what was wrong with you and your sister—just that you grate on each other's nerves and have nothing in common.

In your case there is also resentment on your side and the knowledge that she is imposing on you for never fear but that she knows she has placed herself in a wrong position.

Paradoxical as it seems, the mere fact that you are sisters may prevent your being friends. Break up the situation. You are entitled to your home and your sister to a break.

A Problem Where Two Sisters Do Not Get Along—One Dependent on the Other

INCOMPATIBLE husbands and wives may divorce and by so doing end a state of perpetual warfare, but what about sisters under each other's skins and in each other's hair?

There is a hard lot, but one that fortunately need not go on forever. No two people can live in hatred and do any good for themselves or each other.

"My dear Mrs. Martin: My sister has been unemployed for four years and during that time has made her home with me. I am a widow and lame, so it is difficult for me to get around. I use a cane always. My sister seems to take it for granted that she can keep house for me and live with me indefinitely. She makes no attempt to get work, and I am sure she could, although she is no longer young. She is very expert in book-keeping and is a very poor cook. She is also very disagreeable, and I do not want her to live with me—that's the whole thing in a nutshell. I can get along without her—always did—and be very much happier. Yet how can I turn her out when she has no money? It costs less for her to keep in here than where she is, and I resent it. Do you think it is my duty to have her with me? I hope you don't. My friends, I am afraid, think I am hard, but they have no way of knowing how she irritates me. With you I can say frankly that I don't want to live in the same house with her, and don't see why I should have to."

QUESTION: "I have never used cosmetics. This summer, however, I am going away to school and I would like to use make-up and a few creams or tonics to make my skin softer and tighter in color. I am tanned at present and my skin is not as soft as it could be. Can you tell me what I should buy?"

—Puzzled.

If I were in your place, I wouldn't worry about the tanned skin—unless it is very dark or reddish in color. You will probably want to go on picnics and take part in outdoor sports while you are at school, and a tanned, healthy-looking skin is an asset because you will not have to worry about sunburns and because it really looks well. Do get a good russet or orange-red rouge that will give your cheeks and lips a healthy glow, and get a powder that matches as nearly as possible your complexion tone. Get one good all-purpose cream for softening and for a powder base on special occasions, and get a mild skin freshener to prevent shine and keep your skin firm and clear.

If long use has dulled a pan or percolator, it may be restored to its former luster by buffing the surface with a cheesecloth bag containing a little flour.

Ability for Salad-Making Brings Hostess Popularity

By JUDITH WILSON

THE ability to create a perfect salad will boost your popularity as a hostess during the coming months. Often the salad will serve as your main course when the menu is simple and the thought of hot, heavy food is discouraging. On such occasions your salad must be nourishing as well as cool and tasty. This can be accomplished by the addition of long thin slices of boiled beef tongue, chicken or ham to your vegetable mixture. Other times your salad will serve as an appetizer or as an interlude that whets your appetite for the following course, and still other times your salad will serve also as a dessert.

There are nearly as many kinds of salad dressings as there are salad ingredients, so it will pay you to try different kinds. A knowledge of their ingredients and varying flavors will enable you to choose the right one for the right occasion. The following recipes will intrigue you:

Tossed Salad

Use equal parts tender hearts of lettuce and young spinach that has been thoroughly cleaned and crisped. Marinate the greens, about three cups of them, one tablespoon minced green pepper, three-fourths cup diced celery and two teaspoons minced onion separately in some of the following dressing:

Mix one and one-half teaspoons salt, two teaspoons paprika and three teaspoons sugar in a bowl. Add one cup salad oil and one-third cup lemon juice to the dry ingredients slowly, beating constantly. Add one tablespoon chopped red pepper, one teaspoon dry mustard and two hard cooked egg yolks, chopped.

After marinating, put all of the ingredients into a large bowl, toss until well mixed and serve immediately with additional dressing and a garnish of sliced hard-cooked eggs.

Chef's Salad

This one is popular with the men. Mix as many kinds of greens as are available: romaine, lettuce, watercress, chicory, endive. Dress with a thick and rather sharp French dressing made with a slightly beaten egg yolk, a teaspoon each of salt and paprika, one half teaspoon dry mustard, about a half cup sharp cider vinegar and one cup olive oil. The greens should be broken into small pieces. These are arranged in the bottom of a large salad bowl with finely shredded ham, Swiss cheese, chicken and ham arranged like bundles of straw across the top. When ready to serve, toss lightly together to pick up any dressing in the bot-

Fruit Salad

This makes an attractive dessert when the fruit is arranged in layers in pretty glass bowls or large sherbet glasses. Dice one large apple, one pear, one peach, one banana, two slices fresh or canned pineapple and half a dozen ripe fat strawberries, sliced thin. If you like your servings generous, you had better not try to get more than three out of this recipe! Try the following dressing:

Whip one-half cup cream until very stiff and fold in two tablespoons mayonnaise, a dash of paprika, a teaspoon lemon juice, a tablespoon orange juice and two teaspoons red currant jelly. Pour over the fruit salads just before serving.

Veal Loaf

Soften two tablespoons granulated gelatin in one-half cup cold water and dissolve in two cups well season veal stock or canned bouillon. Chill until the mixture begins to stiffen and add three cups chopped veal, two teaspoons chopped onion, one half cup chopped celery and two teaspoons chopped green pepper. Turn into loaf pans rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm, unmold, garnish slices and serve on crisp lettuce leaves with mayonnaise.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "Where should the guest of honor be seated?"

—T. F.

ANSWER: If a woman, the guest of honor is seated at the right of the host. If a man, seat him at the right of the hostess.

Short Cuts

To clean the top burners of the gas range, they should be removed. Use a stiff brush to remove all particles. A small long-wire-handled brush similar to the type used for cleaning a percolator spout can be inserted in the air intake and all the dust and dirt can be removed from the inside of the burner. If this is done once a month boiling the burners will not be necessary.

Grass stains of long standing should be removed with molasses and allowed to stand for several hours before washing.

SWEET GIRL GRADUATE

This dainty evening frock worn by Dorothy Libaire, of the films, is created in lipstick red and white mousseline and has a sash of red velvet. It is particularly suitable for the debutante.

TRANSPLANTED AMERICANS TO GO TO FARMS

Seward, Alaska, May 9—UP—Sixty-seven families of the Matanuska Valley, Federal colony transplanted here today, children and homes held in tow from the Trans-Alaska railroad. The families, preparing for the final phase of their migration from mid-west arid areas to untilled Alaska fields. The colonists will reach Anchorage tomorrow in time to be fed at an "all-Alaska" dinner consisting of beer "cheer" huge salmon steaks, flesh of the hybrid of fish by crossing the Siberian yak with domesticated cattle, early fresh vegetables from fertile Matanuska Valley and other dishes.

From Anchorage they will continue by train to Palmer, near which they will settle in tent cities erected by the advance guard of CCC workers. After each family will draw lots for 40 acre tracts and permanent residences will be built before fall. The transient workers today were grading streets and laying out drainage facilities in the valley. Wells, to supply pure, cold water were dug. Work of the colony in the fertile Matanuska, as one Alaskan put it, will begin the change of Alaska from the "land of the tin can" to a

CALL MASS MEETINGS

Van Zandt said that while the action was unprecedented he felt it was thoroughly justified by the situation.

He sent instructions to 2500 posts in every state in the union to organize mass meetings, conduct house to house canvasses, contact business and social organizations and make radio addresses to bring pressure upon the White House.

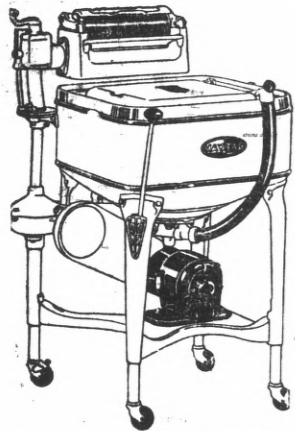

ASKS MESSAGES

The 1,000,000 messages which he predicted would be sent to the White House before the Patman bill leaves Capitol Hill, will "give the President a comprehensive cross section of public opinion and the wishes of the constituencies of members of Congress who voted for the Patman bill."

A steady stream of telegrams already is flowing into the offices of those Senators who voted against the Patman bill when it was passed by the Senate Tuesday by a vote of 55 to 32, eight votes short of the two-thirds majority necessary to override a presidential veto.

In an effort to give ample time for the people to bombard the White House with telegrams, Patmanites moved again today to keep the controversial bill on Capitol Hill and delay the certain White House veto.

World's Largest Mirror

HERE is the world's largest mirror, 100 inches in diameter, after it received its reflecting coat of aluminum and as it now appears at Mount Wilson Observatory at Pasadena, Cal. The mirror, for use in the giant telescope, is said to assist mankind in peering farther into infinitude than ever before. Dr. John Strong of the California Institute, is shown inspecting the new coating.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—From all the fire and counterfire regarding the continued life of the NRA, one thing definitely emerges—politically, the NRA is bad medicine.

This is why the Senate is so hostile. Democrats in the Senate want to steer clear of it for that reason. Republicans want to use it as campaign ammunition against the Democrats. Neither wants to take the risk of championing it.

Political fight is the main factor behind the Senate Finance committee's vote to grant the NRA a "breathing spell" until next April. The committee did not dare taunt the President outright by going the whole way and voting to junk the NRA entirely—as all but a few members would have liked to do.

But it did the next thing to it. Its proposal would strip NRA authority to the bone, would limit its existence to such a brief period that there is grave doubt of its chances to survive.

Members of the Senate Committee are boasting openly that if their short-term program goes through it will be the beginning of the end for the Blue Eagle.

And frightened Administrationites are not disputing the assertion. They know only too well how true it is.

WHO RULES DIPLOMACY

The State Department at last has found something which will keep Ambassador Hugh Gibson both occupied and happy. He is to mediate the Chaco War in South America.

Most brilliant diplomatic maneuvering has been going on for days of negotiations, disarmament and naval conferences. Hugh Gibson has been badly under the New Deal.

He had spent too many week-ends

striking in the industry as heartily as the auto magnates.

First, they privately doubted the chances of success and were fearful of the consequences of a defeat. Second, they were deathly afraid of possible repercussions among their workers in the steel and textile industries, where strong insurance elements are demanding militant action.

And, finally, the labor chiefs in their true pact with the President several months ago promised to keep the lid down on labor disturbances until the NRA and Wagner Labor Disputes bills had been disposed of.

But the auto workers took the bait in their teeth.

In secret talks conducted by one of the F. A. of L. they voted overwhelmingly for resort to the picket line to enforce their demand for union recognition. After weeks of waiting for their leaders to act on this mandate, nothing happened.

The workers walked out—on the leaders as well as on the bosses.

So out of touch was the A. F. of L. leadership with what was going on among the workers that Francis Dillon, chief auto organizer, was in Washington when the first outbreak occurred in Toledo.

It is significant of the underlying distrust of the embattled workers for the A. F. of L. generalissimo that they have set up their own strike committee, vested with the sole power to make peace terms.

Recent changes made in the appearance of the Capitol's Statuary Hall are not the first that historic chamber has seen.

Some years ago the walls of the large, vaulted room were covered with a painted imitation of Siena marble. Scattered over this decoration were a number of painted pictures, among them likenesses of Theodore Roosevelt, William McKinley and Mark Hanna.

Only one of the pictures, however, proved a real drawing card.

It occupied a most inconspicuous place amid these notables, but was pointed out by all Capitol guides.

Complaints finally caused the Capitol architect to remove the picture. To do this he had to abolish the entire painted marble decoration.

Reason for the censorship was that the design was a full-length nude.

STRIKE VOTE IS AWAITED BY COAST SEAMEN COMPROMISE IN LUMBER STRIKE SEEN

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—UP—Pacific Coast shipping tonight appeared headed for a general strike with representatives of the powerful maritime federation of 25 unions openly threatening such a step unless settlement is reached in strike of oil tankship workers.

Harry Lundberg, Seattle, president of the federation, said tonight that the organization's executive committee would meet in a day or two in San Francisco to call a strike vote.

WARNINGS REPEATED F. M. Kelley, secretary of the federation, repeated warnings in San Francisco that the strike vote would be called unless federal intervention was thrust into the situation.

"We can and will tie up every ship if someone doesn't get busy," he told Ollerio, seaman member of the committee, said.

COMMITTEE NAMED Comprising the executive committee will be 32 men selected from Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and San Pedro. These men will represent eight major unions and their affiliates—longshoremen, marine engineers, seamen, firemen, oilers and waterfronters, cooks and stewards, ferryboatmen, radio operators and masters, mates and pilots.

The federation's threatened strike vote followed charges that Secretary of Labor Perkins and other federal officials had ignored repeated demands for federal intervention in the situation. The union spokesmen repeated insistence that a mediation board named by Secretary Perkins which recently abandoned peace efforts, be given power to enforce final peace power to make peace terms.

It occupied a most inconspicuous place amid these notables, but was pointed out by all Capitol guides.

Complaints finally caused the Capitol architect to remove the picture. To do this he had to abolish the entire painted marble decoration.

Reason for the censorship was that the design was a full-length nude.

COMMITTEE NAMED Comprising the executive committee will be 32 men selected from Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and San Pedro. These men will represent eight major unions and their affiliates—longshoremen, marine engineers, seamen, firemen, oilers and waterfronters, cooks and stewards, ferryboatmen, radio operators and masters, mates and pilots.

The federation's threatened strike vote followed charges that Secretary of Labor Perkins and other federal officials had ignored repeated demands for federal intervention in the situation. The union spokesmen repeated insistence that a mediation board named by Secretary Perkins which recently abandoned peace efforts, be given power to enforce final

peace power to make peace terms.

Recent changes made in the appearance of the Capitol's Statuary Hall are not the first that historic chamber has seen.

Some years ago the walls of the large, vaulted room were covered with a painted imitation of Siena marble. Scattered over this decoration were a number of painted pictures, among them likenesses of Theodore Roosevelt, William McKinley and Mark Hanna.

through the rich and the corporations employment is furnished to millions and the moment we cripple them financially we only increase our own burdens by throwing more people out of employment and on charity. But they persist in their attempts and are always ready for the attack.

I hold no brief for predatory wealth, neither do I contend that our economic system is perfect. There are many imperfections in our present system which give rise to grave injustices and demand remedy. But neither am I convinced that by levying unjust and confiscatory taxes can the problem be solved. Frankly I am of the opinion that part of our distressing situation today is due to the attitude of the national administration toward business.

No recovery will be seen until capital is assured of fair play and an attitude than what is now held, that a man who has a dollar is a criminal and a crook, is adopted.

EVERY legislator who has an idea about taxation is sure to take a pot shot at the bill and what the final result will be, is hard to predict. Almost anything can be expected but whatever the dose prescribed we will be forced to swallow and say we like it.

In the meantime the committee has decided to elevate the sales tax a half percent with foods exempted. Other proposals receiving the sanction of the committee thus far are:

An income tax rate at 20 percent of the federal rate, to yield $18,000,000; increase in the banking corporation tax, $17,000,000; 20 percent boost in the inheritance tax $3,000,000; and a general tax of one and three-quarters percent of the estimated value of automobiles to yield $18,000,000. The tax upon motor vehicles would be in lieu of city and county personal taxes, thus offsetting to some extent the loss suffered by public utilities going back on the tax rolls of the counties.

The committee having discovered where to get the money as represented by the above enumerated items, must dig around for some more millions and tax lightning may strike in any direction.

WANT TAX ALSO. Immediately following passage of this measure, Assemblyman Frank Waters, Los Angeles, asked approval of his measure to tax natural gas pipe lines.

After Assemblyman DeLap had voiced bitter opposition to this bill on the ground it also was an example of using taxation to force regulation, the measure was passed 58 to 24.

TO ASK RECONSIDERATION. DeLap gave notice of reconsideration of the vote by which both pipe line bills were passed.

DE LAP OPPOSES BILL. Assemblyman T. H. DeLap, Richmond, leading the fight against the bill, indicated the measure was not intended for revenue purposes.

"The independent oil companies of southern California are asking you to stultify yourselves, to use your powers of taxation for their benefit," he told the Assembly.

The bill was passed 58 to 24.

Why does it match imported Pilsner?

Time-honored Pilsner methods... more leisurely, more costly brewing.

Malt and hops chosen to give the strength and body, the matchless flavor of Pilsner itself. Water different from most American waters—strikingly like the famous brewing waters of Pilsen and Munich (the unbiased opinion of chemists known throughout the West). Months of patient aging.

Can you taste what all this does for beer? Try it!

THE "JURY'S" 11 TO 1 VERDICT Can American beers match the king of all brews—pre-war imported Pilsner? Men who knew "before-the-war" beers recently made a test.

ACTUALLY LIKE THE PILSNER OF PRE-PROHIBITION DAYS

TASTE it... the ONLY beer—in actual bottle-to-bottle tests—that equals costly Pilsner... IMPORTED Pilsner

THAT'S no claim... no advertising "story." Ten leading American beers stood side by side—labels, bottle caps were covered. Imported Pilsner that traveled the seas from the home city of ALL beer, historic Pilsen, was there to compare.

And—around the testing table—12 men who've known the finest of beers, for 30... 40, yes, up to 65 years!

A retired judge, an old brewmaster, veteran news reporters, the master of a bar famous throughout America, a great aviator! Men from all over the West—and beer-experts—all.

Only one beer, 11 in 12 of this "beer jury" agreed, matched the strong, bracing brew from Bohemia. ONLY ONE BEER—the West Coast's own Brown Derby!

What's the reason? Read it in the panel at left.

Then get some bottles of Brown Derby Beer. Taste it. You decide—for or against the real imported Pilsner taste!

real Pilsner specially brought from Bohemia. Note below what this "jury" found. If you love beer it's worth making a test yourself—a test of the astonishing fact they agreed upon 11 to 1.
